Horrible Tragedy.

MURDER OF A CHILD, AND SUICIDE OF THE MURDERER. A TEMPERANCE LEC-TURE.

Early Tuesday morning of last week the little town of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, N. Y., was aroused from its wonted serenity by a rumor that a young girl had been murdered, and that her murderer had afterward put an end to his own existence. The rumor, upon investigation, proved to be only too true. The facts of the case are as follows: Mr. Charles P. Harrington, boot and shoe manufacturer, whose residence and place of business is in Griffin St. near the first landing, had in his employ a man named Garret Roach, who lived and boarded in the house. About 6:30 A. M. Tuesday, the two little daughters of Mr. Harrington-Emma, aged 12, and Ella, aged 6-were dressing themselves in their bed-room on the third floor, when this man Roach entered with a knife in his hand, such as is used in cutting leather, and addressing the elder sister, asked her roughly where their "money bank" was. His strange manner frightened the children and they did not answer him, whereupon he seized Emma by the head and cut two deep gashes in her throat from ear to ear. Seeing him in the act of perpetrating this barbarity, Ella ran out of the room and down stairs, screaming for help. On reaching the hallway, she flew into the arms of a servant girl, crying, " O, save me ! save me ! Roach is killing Emma up stairs." Mr. Harrington, who was in the kitchen with his wife when he heard the screams, rushed up-stairs to his daughter's bedroom. Upon entering the room he saw Emma lying on the floor, with her throat cut, and weltering in her blood, but not quite dead. He picked her up, uttering at the same time agonizing cries for assistance, which were repeated by the household. Mr. Ambrose, a livery stable keeper, living a little further down the street, heard these cries, and ran over to Harringtons's house .-On entering he met Mr. Harrington on the first floor, standing with his daughter's body in his arms, and his light clothes stained with the blood which was welling from the wounds in the throat. Mr. Harrington begged him to run for a doctor, but Ambrose remarked that the child was already dead, and asked who had done the deed. Harrington answered, "The man up stairs." Ambrose thereupon seized a club and went up stairs. On reaching the third floor he entered the workshop, which is upon the same floor as the children's bed-room .-On entering he saw Roach lying on his face on the floor with his throat cut, and almost dead. A looking-glass on the wall was all bespattered with blood, as if the wretched man had stood up in front of it to commit the deed. Meantime the neighbors, attracted by the cries, gathered around the house and sent for Coroner Harcourt, who immediately impanneled a jury to hold an inquest over the bodies. Testimony was given according to the above account, and the jury returned the following verdicts: "That Emma Harrington came to her death by a shoe-knife in the hand of Garret Roach, while laboring under a temporary fit of insanity," and " That Roach came to his death by committing suicide." The poor young girl thus cut off in her budding youth, was a great favorite with the community, and was just beginning to be useful to her parents around the house and in the store. Lying in her untimely coffin, her face wore a serene expression, as though she had not a few hours previously been snatched from a life of earthly happiness by the most violent and revolting means. The murderer and suicide, Roach, was a native of Ireland, but had been in this country for some years. He is said to have had a wife and children in Ireland, and children also living with another shoemaker in Brooklyn. He was a well built man, about five feet seven inches high, dark hair and dark complexion, and apparently between 45 and 48 years of age. He was a confirmed drunkard, and had take en and broke the pledge two or three times within the last twelve months.-He has also been locked up several times for being found drunk in the streets. He had been in Mr. Harrington,s employ for over a year. During the last three weeks, until the day before yesterday, he had been almost continually drunk, but on that day he behaved pretty well, and did some work. On the same evening he borrowed nine cents of Mr. Harrington, and stayed out the greater part of the night. Early in the morning Mr. Harrington was lying in his bed, when Roach entered the room .-There was an uneasy glare in his eye, and Mr. Harrington asked him what was the matter. He answered that he could not sleep that night, turned and went out. Mr. Harrington is of the opinion that Roach intended to murder him then if he had found him asleep. The last time Roach was seen alive he was drinking some water from a cup in the hallway, a few minutes before the tragely. From what he said about the " money bank," and also from the fact of his having frequently tried to borrow money from Mr. Harrington to spend in liquor, which money Mr. Harrington very properly refused to lend, there can be very little doubt that a feeling of rever ge, perhaps an intention to rob the house, if possible, partly actuated the wretched

and self-abhorence, a natural revolting, in fact, of his own conscience against ivory; "tank you; but fore you close what he had done, as well as the thoughts him up jist say, 'Please 'scuse bad writof the punishment which would surely ing and spelling,' will ye?" follow, may have driven him to the second. His mind at the same time was as desired. clouded by the effects of his three weeks' debauch, and what with the feelings of evenge and avarice, and the burning lesire for liquor, he probably did not omprehend that he had actually committed murder until he felt it necessary to commit suicide. The weapon with which the crimes were perpetrated is a common-old shoe-knife, sharp and well vorn, and about seven inches long, part of the blade being covered with leather. The murdered girl was Mr. Harrington's eldest child.

THE WIND .- Nothing is more curious than the effect produced upon the mind by the wash of the waves, and the blowng of the wind in hollow places. It cannot be association which gives both ounds their air of mystic dreaminess, of vain lamentation, or of melancholy desire. Both sea and wind are potent mough and practical enough to make the men who specially devote themselves o using and breathing their power, ound of the sea on the shore and the wind roaring through the house, suggests anything but daring and enterprise. If t suggests danger and shipwreck-that is by association, and because we know that shipwrecks come of waves and winds-directly it does not suggest danger or struggle, but rather

But the special expressive power of high moaning wind seems to be to blend an immense variety of subdued notes-notes melancholy in themselves SHOES, (sowewhat shopworn,) for every day, which into a volume of sound so great as to eem like the voice of a great past-away world complaining of its fate or its obwill de you good, but if you will just give him a cal

If it is strange enough—as it is -that solid food growing out of the arth should supply the human organication with nervous power to perceive and feel, it is at least as strange that a ew gases ranging round the earth, the J. TOTAL ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.-The otal eclipse of the sun, which will occur on the 7th of August next, is the only one since 1834, which could be observed in any considerable portion of our counry, and no other total eclipse will be visible in America during the present century. As a partial eclipse it will be visible all over the northern parts of this continent, while the path of the umbra The Best Cooking Stove Ever Made ! n which the eclipse will be total, is about 140 miles in breadth, and passing from Siberia across this continent to the Atlantic ocean, includes within its limits portion of Alaska, British America, Montana, Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina. An imaginary line drawn lengthwise through the middle of this umbra would indicate the path of the central eclipse, designating upon the earth the various places where the center of the moon's shadow will seem to coincide with the center of the sun. In St. Louis, Omaha, Cairo and Knoxville, t will but for a moment be seen, as a total eclipse; at Fort Clark, Fort Union, Sioux City, Louisville, Frankfort and Raleigh it will be seen longer, while at Des Moines and Fort Conolly it will be central, or very nearly so.

ATTENTIVENESS .- How much more we might make of our family life, of our friendships, if every secret thought of love blossomed into a deed! We are not now speaking merely of personal caresses. These may or may not be the language of affection. Many are endowed with a delicacy, a fastidiousness of physical organization, which shrinks away from too much of these, repelled and overpowered. But there are words and looks and little observances, thoughtfulness, watchfulness, careful little attentions, which speak of love, which make t manifest, and there is scarce a family that might not be richer in heart-wealth for more of them.

It is a mistake to suppose that relations must of course love each other because they are relations. Love must be cultivated, and can be increased by julicious culture, as wild fruits may double their bearing under the hand of a gardener; and love can dwindle and die out by neglect, as choice flower-seeds planted in poor soil dwindle and grow single. - Atlantic.

COES COUGH BALSAM.

This long tried and popular Remedy is again called to the attention of the public. As often as the year rolls around, the proprietors annually make their bow to the people, and remind them that amongs the many things required for the health, comfort and sustenance of the family through the long and tedious months of winter, Coe's Cough Balsam should not be forgotten. For years it has been a household medicine—and mothers anxious for the safety of their children, and all who suffer from any disease of the throat, chest and lungs, cannot afford to be without it. In addition to the ordinary four ounce so long in the market, we now furnish our mammoth family size bottles, which will, in common with the other size, be found at all Drug Stores.

FOR CROUP,

The Balsam will be found invaluable, and may always be relied upon in the most extreme eases

Are as surely cured by this potent remedy, as the patient takes it. Although but five years before the people, what is the verdict of the masses? Hear what Lester Sexton of Milwankee says:

From LESTER SEXTON, of Milwankee. Milwauker, Jan. 24, 1868. Mesers. C. G. Clark & Co., New Haven, Conn.: Both myself and wife have used Coe's Dyspepsia Cure, and it has proved perfectly satisfactory as a remedy. I have no hesitation in saying that we have received great benefit from its use.

Very respectfully.
(Signed) LESTER SEXTON.

A GREAT BLESSING.

From Rev. L. F. WARD, Avon, Lorsin Co., O. Messrs. Strong & Armstrong, Druggists, Cleveland. Gentlemen;—It gives me great pleasure to state that my wife has derived great benefit from the use of Coe's Dyspensia Cure. She has been for a num-ber of years greatly troubled with Dyspensia, accompanied with violent paroxysms of constipation, which so prostrated her that she was all the while for months, unable to do anything. She took, at your instance, Coe's Dyspepsia Cure, and has derived GREAT BENEFIT FROM IT, and is now comparatively well. She regards this medicine as a great blessing. Truly yours, L. F. WARD
